

Pierre Farjounel

CISO and Head of Future Developments

Pierre Farjounel has been appointed CISO (Chief Information Security Officer) and Head of Future Developments at ATR, the world's leading regional aircraft manufacturer. He took up his position on 1 December 2024 and reports directly to the CEO.

With over 15 years of experience in transnational environments, Pierre has developed a strong ability to navigate complex challenges with a pragmatic and customer-oriented mindset. His career has been shaped by a passion for transformation and fostering collaborative networks to drive meaningful change. In his role, Pierre will accelerate ATR's ongoing sustainability efforts, ensuring the company's operations align with its environmental commitments and reinforcing ATR's leadership in responsible aviation. He will also steer ATR's future developments, strengthening key collaborations and strategic partnerships to drive innovation and long-term success.

Pierre joins ATR after spending more than 3 years at Universal Hydrogen as General Manager Europe, and 13 years at Airbus, where he held various leadership roles in major transformation projects. He contributed to the Airbus DDMS (Digital Design, Manufacturing, and Services) programme, overseeing Digital Continuity and Information Systems. Prior to that, he served as Head of Capability and Technology Strategy for Flight Physics, bringing innovative approaches to engineering and technology strategy.

Pierre holds a master's degree in environmental science from IUP Paul Sabatier Toulouse and possesses a robust skill set that includes Engineering, Environmental Awareness, Systems Engineering, Continuous Improvement, and Project Management. Known for his objectivity, honesty, and enthusiasm, he values ingenuity over conformity and seeks challenges that allow him to apply creative and novel solutions to complex problems.

His deep expertise in digital transformation, cybersecurity, sustainability, and strategic development will be instrumental in driving ATR's future growth and innovation, ensuring the company remains at the forefront of sustainable regional aviation.
